An exchange wants to know who pockets the interest on the one hundred millions of gold that Bontwell hoards in the Treasury. Isn't it loaned out sub rosa, and doesn't sombody make a fat thing of it? And won't there be a stunning defalcation in that connection, some of these days?

SPEAKING of Mr. Greeley's recent reconciliation tour the St. Louis Republican says: "Our Presidential candidate (Greeley) grows upon us. We were satisfied with him at first; we are proud of him now. He is superior to Adams; he is superior to O'Conor; he is immeasurably superior to

Gov. HARRIMAN, of New Hampshire, who was announced to speak at Williamsport, Penn., on the 26th ult., in favor of Grant and Wilson, and was in the hotel there during Mr. Greeley's stay, walked up to Mr. Greeley (who immediately recogzed bim), shook his hand and said: "I am glad to see you Mr. Greeley, but cannot vote for you." "Oh, very well," said Mr. Greeley, "I don't think we shall need you." This was said so coolly and promptly that it created quite a laugh at Mr. Harriman's

THE Banner gives editorial place to a correspondent who writes:

I am of the opinion that political parties cannot be mainta, ned and made useful to the people except through the agency of conventions, that political consultations and co-operations cannot be secured except through the medium of conventions, and that those great political movements which ultimate in the facts of history, generally derive their original force and mementage from the action of the people in a representative convention. Caldwell was regularly nominated as the Democratic candidate, and Hon. A. E. pendent" candidate. They have been canvassing for a week or ten days. Now we have the announcement that Col. J. M. Thornburgh, the most popular Radical in his district, is out and after them. The following is from the Knoxville Chronicle, Radical, of the 4th:

The enthusiasm is not confined men of both parties, who have not found in thought. Of this we are quite sure: The of ther Mr. Caldwell or Col. voles enough under the influence of Mr. | States. Johnson's "independent" teachings, especially as Caldwell was a Confederate, to elect Thornburgh.

THE COLORED BACK The New York Heruld has recently seen publishing some very interesting sta-try is the status and influence of the negro value of their labor could be ascertained readily in the several States or throughout the South generally, because it was a forced labor; but the surprising revolution effected by the war has changed all that. From seven to eight hundred thousand votes have been added to the aggregate suffrage of the country, and the labor of four millions of slaves has become free and independent as that of the white pop-ulation of the Northern States. There never has been before in the history of nations such an extraordinary revolution within so short a time. Fortunately, the mediate results have not been as disastrous as might have been expected. The negro is peculiarly tropleal. The color and texture of his skin largely contribute to this constitutional nature. In this we find what is and will be a potential element in the law of movement of the negro population. In the United States the general flow of their migration will be southerly. This tendency will be increased by the influence of the facts that in the warmer States production is more spon taneous, lighter and cheaper clothing and food are only requisite, less fuel is needed, and the least costly habitations are suitable. The negroes will steadily emigrate, under the fixed action of these causes, from Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Missouri, North Carolins, Kentucky and the upper and middle sections of Tennessee, South Caroline and Georgia, to the other and more southern portions of the South. This was the general fact even during slavery, and the experience of the past confirms the universal. Observe the annexed table, which shows the per centage of gain and the relation of gain of the negro population of the Southern States for the decade from 1850 to

There, too, the African race is far less liable to the malarious diseases than the white, and for that reason can indulge their desire for the gregarious seclu-sion and indolent quiet of their kind. The negroes along the Atlantic shore are more ignorant and primitive, less self-reliant and enterprising than those of the interior. They lose but little by emigration; but there the natural increase is less than elsewhere. Their character, habits and food are not liked by the interior mass of their race, and they gain little by immigration.

The next following table shows the change in the gain, and the relation of gain, of the negro population of the same States for the decade from 1860 to 1870: 1870. 1860. Grain

District Columbia.... 43,464 Alabama,.... ,391,630 444,901 437,404

The increase in the negro population of the United States in the decade from 1850 to 1800 was nineteen per cent., and in the decade from 1860 to 1870 was twelve per cent., and but for the war during the latter period would have been at least fifteen per cent. Those States whose per cent. of gain has been less than these average rates have comparatively decreased in that population by emigration, and those were the gain has been greater than the natural increase have enlarged it by immigration. From the geographical position of these respective States it is evident that the flow of emigration has been uniformly South and partly West. It this continues, as it probably will, the negroes will monopolise Florida and Southwestern Texas, and as the white population presses on their heels, and to their exclusion from their present field of labor.

they will eventually pour into Mexico and Central America. The pressure of the white race, to the displacement of the black, will probably ever and at least be in proportion to the preponderance of the former over the latter, and which, in 1870, (by the census of the above States and Territory, exclusive of Missouri and Delaware) was seven millions seven hundred and sixty thousand nine hundred and eighty-eight whites to four in illion three hundred and ninety-eigh thousand and seventeen blacks. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, jun., has made a speech at Quincy, Mass., in which he is strong against Mr. Greeley. The young man makes a good deal of fuss upon the principle of his prototype, who said that "Dad was under the hay." The conduct of the Adamses since the Convention nomination shows that a lucky escape was made in not nominating one of them. So says the St. Louis Republican.

GIFT CONCERTS

GIFT MONEY ALL UP Great Southern Railroad. $500,000 in Bank to Pay Prizes.

A FULL DRAWING IN SIGHT

THE GRAND GIFT CONCERT, FOR THE benefit of the Public Library of Rentucky, postponed to Saturday, the 7th of December, the following reas as:

1. The failure of cortain agents to make remain time for the drawing to take place terns in time for the drawing to take place Sopt. 28.

2. The accumulation of orders during the last few days to such an extent that it was not possible to fill them and have the drawing on the 28th.

3. The generally expressed desire of tickethoiders that a full drawing might be had, even if it made a short postponement necessary.

4. The belief of the management that, by a short postponement, the remnant of unsold tickets can be disposed of, and all the prizes paid in full without the necessity of any pro rata scaling down.

down.

For these reasons, coupled with the earnest desire to benefit the Public Library by a larger balance, and the ticket holders by larger gifts, the concert and distribution have been postponed to Saturday, the ith of December, 1872. On that day and no other the drawing will positively and unequivocally come off in the Great Hall of the Public Library Building, beginning at precisely 6 e'clock A. R., and continue until the whole of the one thousand gifts are awarded.

The payment of the gifts will begin the third day after the drawing and continue for six months, in current tands, by the Farmers' and Drovers' Bank, for by sight draft upon the Fourth National Bank, New York, at the option of the gift ticket-holders. LIST OF GIFTS.
